

YOUR SET-IT-ONCE GUIDE

Monthly Plan

Set it once. Follow it all year.

A monthly and annual budget in one file. Plan once, let it carry forward, and see the whole year clearly.

ONE FILE · WORKS OFFLINE · YOUR OWN BACKUPS

What you downloaded.

Read this page first. The rest is here whenever you need it.

FILE	WHAT IT IS
MonthlyBudgetPlanner.html	The whole app, in one file. This is the product.
Monthly_Plan_Guide.pdf	This guide.
START_HERE.txt	The short version of this page.
LICENCE.txt	What you may and may not do with the file.

The HTML file is not a document that opens an app — it is the app. The code, fonts and charts are all inside it, and nothing is downloaded when you use it.

Setting up — about ten minutes

1. Extract the ZIP into a folder you will find again. A synced folder — iCloud Drive, Dropbox, OneDrive, Google Drive — is ideal.
2. Double-click MonthlyBudgetPlanner.html. It opens in your browser like a web page, and works offline from then on.
3. Take the welcome tour. Four short slides: planning, logging, backups, and your first transaction.
4. Build your plan once in Monthly budget, then save it as your repeating plan.
5. Download a backup from Settings & backup. Page 9 explains why it matters more than anything else here.

Want to look around first?

Choose Explore sample data in the sidebar. A fictional year fills every screen, in a separate session. Return to my budget brings back your own figures, untouched.

One number, not a balance.

Monthly Plan answers one question first: how much is genuinely free this month?

The Monthly dashboard. After your commitments is what remains once unpaid bills, debt payments and planned contributions are set aside.

Why it is not just your bank balance

A bank balance still counts money already promised to your rent, your card and your savings. This number does not. That is the whole difference — and why it is usually lower than you expect at first.

Green and red mean one thing

Within plan, or over it. Those two colours are reserved for that everywhere in the planner, so you never have to decode them. Hover any chart for the exact figure.

The screens.

Twelve views, grouped in the sidebar. Turn off any you do not use in Settings.

SCREEN	WHAT IT IS FOR
Monthly dashboard	What is left after commitments, and where the plan stands.
Annual dashboard	The year: plan against actual, and every category month by month.
Monthly budget	Your plan. Set once; every month starts from it.
Transactions	Everything logged — searchable, filterable, with charts. Import CSV here.
Savings & goals	Goals you are saving towards, and debts you are paying off.
Recurring payments	Bills and income on a rhythm — weekly to yearly.
Calendar	The month laid out: planned and recorded, day by day.
Wealth snapshots	Month-end balances and net worth, kept apart from the budget.
Insights	What stands out in your own numbers.
Weekly review	A two-minute check-in to keep the plan true.
Settings & backup	Currency, dates, themes, categories and your backups.
How to use	The guide inside the app, and the tour again.

Logging what you spend

Press N anywhere, or choose Add transaction at the top. Quick log takes a short line like coffee 4.50 and files it by matching words — and remembers your choice next time.

SET IT ONCE

Plan once. It repeats.

Rebuilding a budget every month is what makes most people stop. This one is built so you do not.

Your repeating plan

Save your budget as the baseline and every new month opens already filled in. Change one figure in March and only March changes — the planner marks it as an override for that month.

Groups that fold away

Income, bills, subscriptions, debt, variable spending and savings each collapse with their own totals, so you can work on one part at a time. Add a category from right here.

Recurring payments

Add rent, the phone, the gym once, on their real rhythm. They appear on the calendar and tick off when you record the matching payment.

Import your bank CSV.

Transactions → Import CSV. Map the columns, review, then add.

BRING YOUR ACTIVITY WITH YOU

Import transactions from CSV

Map the columns, review the rows, then add them to your budget.

IT HANDLES

HOW

Any date format

Day/month or month/day is decided from the whole column, not guessed row by row.

Your categories

Every choice you make is remembered, so the next statement arrives mostly sorted.

Duplicates

Rows you already have are flagged and blocked. The same file twice cannot double your spending.

Many rows at once

Select all, set one category for them all. Closed months reopen from the import itself.

Credit cards: pick one method

Import the card's purchases, or record the payment you make to the card — not both, or the same money counts twice.

Saving up. Paying off.

Savings goals and debt payoff goals, side by side, counted from what you actually log.

MAKE ROOM FOR WHAT MATTERS

Savings, goals & debt payoff

Progress counts what you have logged in the linked category from the goal's start date through September 2026. Savings goals add up contributions; debt goals add up payments. Investment goals track contributions, not market value.

Search goals or categories... Every goal Sort: Name (A-Z) 6 of 6 goals

SAVING TOWARDS SOMETHING

Emergency savings · Target Jun 30, 2027

$6,000.00
saved of $10,000.00 · 60% complete

Still to build $4,000.00

About $400 a month, including this one too

Invest consistently
Investment contributions · Target Dec 31, 2026

$3,600.00
saved of $4,800.00 · 75% complete

Still to build $1,200.00

About $100 a month, including this one too

Debt payoff

Link a debt category and the goal becomes a payoff: paid off, per cent cleared, and what is still owing.

Cover photos

Give a savings goal a picture of the thing itself. Photos are cropped to the card's shape, and one button hides them all.

Cards or table

Switch to a table you can sort by any column — saved, target, progress, what is left, date.

Search, filter, sort

Find a goal by name or category, show only those in progress, and order them however helps today.

If a payoff goal sits at 0%, its card tells you why — usually because the card's purchases were imported instead of the payments made to it.

Every category, every month.

Annual dashboard → Every category, across the year.

Each square is one month, shaded by how far actual ran from plan. Select one to open that month. Blank means nothing recorded or not yet due — never a win you did not earn.

A few other things

Exact figures	Planned and actual side by side, with future months left blank. Export it as CSV.
Wealth snapshots	Month-end balances, so the net-worth trend is not muddled by spending.
Insights	Plain observations drawn only from what you entered.
Print	Any screen prints cleanly. Landscape suits the annual views.
Eight themes	Settings & backup → Choose your palette, including two dark modes.

Keeping your plan safe.

Your plan lives in your browser, on your device. Nothing is sent anywhere, there is no account, and nobody else holds a copy — including us.

Your entries live in browser storage — please read

- Everything you enter is saved automatically in that browser's local storage.
- Clearing your cache, history or site data will permanently delete it.
- It does not carry across browsers — a plan built in Chrome will not appear in Safari.
- The HTML file does not contain your entries. Copying the file does not copy your plan.

Do one of these. Ideally both.

Download backup — every browser

Settings & backup → Download backup. One JSON file holding every month, goal and category. Restore backup brings it back on any computer.

Daily folder backup — Chrome or Edge

Choose a synced folder once and a dated copy is written each day you make changes. Safari and Firefox do not offer this, and Settings says so plainly.

Moving to another computer

Copy the HTML file and your latest backup across, open the file, then Settings & backup → Restore backup.

A few useful fixes.

WHAT YOU SEE	WHAT TO DO
It opens as code, not an app	Right-click the file → Open with → your browser. Extract the ZIP first.
My numbers are gone	Check it is the same browser and profile you used before. Otherwise, Restore backup.
An import doubled something	Rows marked Possible duplicate can be deleted; future imports block them.
A payoff goal stays at 0%	Log the payments made to that debt, not the card's purchases.
Folder backup unavailable	Use Chrome or Edge on a computer, or Download backup instead.
A category is wrong	Edit the transaction; create a new category from inside the editor.
The currency is wrong	Settings & backup → Planner currency, or type your own symbol.
I want the tour again	Settings & backup → Welcome tour → Show tour.

Thank you

If Monthly Plan earns its place, a review genuinely helps a small shop. And if it does not, tell us before you leave one — most things are fixable.
